PRESS RELEASE

ERTS² 2010, the European Congress on Embedded Real-Time Software and Systems) will be held the 19th to the 21st of May 2010 in Toulouse, France.

The 5th ERTS European Congress on Embedded Real-Time Software and Systems will be held from the 19th to the 21st of May 2010 in Toulouse, in "Midi-Pyrénées" region, in the heart of the famous Aerospace Valley where the main priority is given to "Embedded Electronic Systems for Intelligent Transportation".

ERTS is a unique European cross sector event on Embedded Software and System, which brings together actors and decision makers who are at the forefront of technological progress with software and electronic, embedded systems.

ERTS is a high-level scientific conference. The programme committee is chaired by Jean-Claude Laprie, winner of the 2009 Grand Prix in Informatics of the French Academy of Sciences.

The 2010's edition, renamed ERTS², opens its doors to all industrial sectors, not limited to transports, involving Embedded Systems: Healthcare and home appliance, Energy management, Telecommunications including wireless connectivity, Industrial control, Defence...

The ERTS² 2010 congress and its associated exhibition provides an opportunity for more than 800 participants, engineers, researchers, technicians, academics, and journalists to communicate and exchange information about their different fields of activity.

One of the main highlights will be the exhibitor forum, organized simultaneously for improving direct relationship and wide communication between providers and users of innovative commercial products and services.

ERTS is organized every 2 years since 2002 by 3 French learned societies: SIA (the Society of Automotive Engineers), A3F (the French Society of Aeronautic and Aerospace), and SEE (the Society for Electricity, Electronics, and Information & Communication Technologies).

ERTS is supported by Continental, Airbus, the ICT clusters Aerospace Valley and System@tic, The region Midi-Pyrénées, the General Council of Haute-Garonne, the Chamber of Commerce and Industry of Toulouse, Grand Toulouse, the City hall of Toulouse...
